GAME LAW ARGUED IN ASSEMBLY CIRCLES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, March 13.—The conservation commission has no objections to persons killing game lawfully giving a portion of it to their friends, according to Chairman W. E. Barber, but he maintains that the moment that provision was placed in the law it would make game a product of commerce and within five years would exterminate all game in the state.

Mr. Barber appeared before the assembly committee on fish and game Tuesday afternoon in opposition to the Ansonge bill to repeal sections relating to the sale of game, and the Zarnke bill which would amend the same sections to permit the sale or giving away of portions of a deer lawfully killed.

Assemblyman George Ansonge, Ontario, maintained that the game laws belong to all people of the state and the law prohibiting a person for selling or giving away game lawfully killed is the most vicious law on the statute books. "It may be vicious," said Mr. Barber, "but it is the only protection the game has."

ART DESIGNER'S VICTORY EMBLEM

Miss Michael and her victory emblem. Inspired by the beautiful lines of Colonel McRae's poem, "In Flanders Fields," Miss Michael, a Y. M. C. A. war worker, has designed an emblem, the Torch of Liberty, which she offers for adoption as a national victory memorial to be displayed throughout the country as America's continuous pledge that we shall "keep faith with those who sleep in Flanders fields."

TWILIGHT CLUB HAS FEASTS, BOND ISSUE SPEECHES AND MUSIC

Members and guests of the Twilight club, last night at the Y. M. C. A. enjoyed two feasts. Both were so good that it was with reluctance the audience accepted its dismissal at the conclusion of the festivities.

The first feast refreshed the physical man so completely that he was in fine fettle for the feast of the soul which followed. An excellent repast was furnished by the women in charge of the culinary department. After this had been disposed of the guests were soothed and cheered with a musical program which was thoroughly enjoyed. In the interim discussions of bond issues which are before the voters were given. And again to make the contrasts of the evening complete, Rev. J. A. Melrose offered a line of thought on the relation of music to man which was entertaining.

Mount Is Presiding Officer
Max Mount, who acted as presiding officer in place of Rev. F. P. Lewis, who was out of the city, called upon County Highway Commissioner Chas. E. Moore to give a talk on the good roads bond issue.

Mr. Moore pointed to the necessity for every man who believes that good roads are good investments to spread the doctrine in the next three weeks so that the campaign of education which is necessary to arouse voters to action could be carried out. He asked that every member of the club take an active part in the campaign. Francis M. Grant, president of the board of education, briefly discussed the high school bond issue and urged the voters, both men and women, to make possible the buying of the building upon Junius St. Hooper, member of the school board and superintendent of the school for the blind, for remarks.

Hooper Urges Care of Schools.

He said in part: "We say that we have $16,000,000 worth of taxable property in Janesville, but we cannot compute the value of the boys and girls in our city. You cannot place it at 65 millions or 65 billions. They represent the greatest wealth we have. For that reason there should be no hesitancy in the part of the voters to make possible the erection of a high school which will be modern and adequate to answer not only present needs but needs of the future."

"It is useless for a city to grow industrially unless it grows educationally and morally. We cannot grow along these lines if we do which to proper the boys and girls. It is a shame to send the children of this city to some of the buildings which are being used for old rattletraps in which the attempt is made to house children who are undergoing the most important training of their lives."

Says Pupils Study in Basement
Pupils of the high school are compelled to study in the basement. Imagine a literary dinner, basement. Other classes are compelled to climb a narrow single stairway, cross a stage one of the upper floors in order to reach recitation rooms. I like to think what would happen if a fire should break out.

"Our children are the only things we really live for and it is to protect them with modern and adequate places to learn their lessons of life."

Mr. Mount in commenting upon Mr. Hooper's remarks declared that every member of the city office should be put on record as to his stand on the school bond proposition. This statement was greeted with a hearty round of applause.

Musical Program Opened
After the discussions of civic problems, the musical program was opened by Secretary Beaumore who led in community singing. A quartette composed of Messrs. Beaumore, Van Pool, Paris and Schoof won applause with two selections.

Prof. S. Taylor, who had charge of the musical program, sang a solo and was given hearty applause.

One of the most enjoyable features of the evening was a reading by Miss Evelyn Veldt. Her "Fire" by Kipling was especially good. She responded with an encore.

Miss Louise Higgins pleased the audience with a difficult selection on the piano and was followed by Miss Clara Shawvan with a vocal solo which was pleasing. Miss Louise Bennett added to the enjoyment of the number by her clever accompaniment.

Arthur's Play Duet.
A duet, violin and cello, by Mr. and Mrs. Eber Arthur was another of the number which brought most hearty response. Dr. S. F. Richards sang two songs which gave him an opportunity to demonstrate the power of his voice. Miss Clara Shawvan and George Waldman scored with a vocal duet, and it was necessary for them to repeat the number.

The program was completed with a band solo by Dr. B. Leofboro in which he showed skill as well as added a lively air to the evening's entertainment.

Rev. Melrose in his address advanced the thought that everything created was set to music and that it could be made harmonious or discordant, according to the inclination and disposition of man.

LEVIES TAX ON MEN WHO DID NOT SERVE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, March 13.—If you were a resident of Wisconsin between 18 and 45 years of age and did not get into the military or naval service during the recent world war it may cost you $5 a year until Wisconsin has paid her monetary debt to those who did enter the service.

An amendment to the Pullen and Cunningham soldier payment bills is now proposed to place a poll tax of $5 per year on each male resident of the state between 18 and 45 years of age as a means of raising the money to pay off the principal and interest on the bonds it would be necessary to issue to meet the soldier payments.

The Pullen bill provides for a bonus to the soldiers, sailors and marines of $10 for each month they were in service.

The Cunningham bill would pay each honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine, for a period of three months, a sum, which together with any money received from the federal government will equal the months pay at the time of discharge.

The two bills are scheduled for hearings Thursday.

CANDIDATES MUST FILE DECLARATIONS

City Clerk Victor E. Hemming announced this morning that all candidates for office at the spring election, which will be held Tuesday, April 1, are required to file a declaration at the city clerk's office prior to March 20.

Candidates are required by law to file a declaration relative to their fitness for the office and to the effect that they are legally qualified to hold the office if elected.

No additional papers have been secured from City Clerk Victor E. Hemming.

It is also required by the state law that each candidate file an expense account the second Saturday after the first expenditure.

CROWDS AT OPENING OF NEW LEATH STORE

"Janesville's most beautiful store," was the verdict of hundreds of people who attended the grand opening of the new Leath furniture store today. The attendance at the first day of the opening was unusually large. A. J. Leath, owner of the chain of stores, and J. E. Cain, local manager, expressed themselves as highly pleased with the reception accorded them here.

Miniature rooms on the main floor of the building and in the two large display windows in which suites of furniture were displayed attracted the most attention. Floor lamps and floral decorations added to the beauty of the entire store.

The opening will continue tomorrow and Mr. Cain and Mr. Leath are expecting an even greater number of visitors. The store will be open for business Saturday.

Federation Missionary Societies Plan Meeting

There was a meeting held yesterday of the program committee of the Federation Missionary societies of the city. A tentative program was arranged for the union meeting which will be held in the Methodist church, Monday, March 24. The program as outlined for the afternoon would be along the needs of the community, and what women can do to help. It includes informal talks by the city nurse, Mrs. Harvey, on problems connected with her duties; by Miss Margaret Youngman on the problems connected with the vocational school; and Mrs. Abbie Ebelmas on problems connected with industrial work of women in the city. There will also be music and possibly a reading for the afternoon.

A lunch hour will be passed in social intercourse, until the evening program when an address will be given by Mr. Nelson, a returned missionary from Tokyo.

Miss Lou Thorne will take charge of a musical program for the evening which will include "Songs of Nations." The committee having charge of the program consists of Mrs. J. S. Taylor, of the Baptist church, Mrs. Rasmussen of the Lutheran, and Mrs. J. S. Nichols of the Methodist. Mrs. C. E. Ewing is president of the organization.

FOUR STRANGERS FINED BY JUDGE

"How many Liberty bonds did you buy?" Judge Maxfield asked Alfred Winna, Beloit, when he was arraigned before the court this morning to answer a charge of intoxication.

"$2,500 worth," Winna replied. Judge Maxfield was a trifle doubtful of the story and upon questioning the man admitted that his family had bought that many Liberty bonds. On his plea of guilty he was fined $20 and costs and ordered to pay the fine at once.

They did not find such a large city as they expected but they found plenty of saloons and started to make a tour of all of them. They were arrested last evening after having had their fill.

They were a sorry looking couple when brought before Judge Maxfield. They had been on the run for some time. They were assessed of $10 and costs or 15 days while Alex was taxed $15 and costs or 20 days.

Frank Wadsworth told Judge Maxfield that he lost $300 on a farm in North Dakota when he was 50 years old and since that time he has been unable to get another start.

He was fined $3 and costs or five days.

IS JUGOSLAVIA'S FOREIGN MINISTER

Dr. Ante Trumbic, who holds the post of foreign secretary in the new Yugoslav ministry, is a Croat from Dalmatian, and was the most prominent leader of the Dalmatian Slavs in their struggle for liberty. Dr. Trumbic was for some years mayor of Spalato and represented this town in the Austrian parliament. At the beginning of the war he was abroad and soon started to organize the Yugoslav exiles in the great revolutionary work against Austria-Hungary. When the Yugoslav committee was formed in Paris four years ago he became its chairman. In that capacity he signed the Corfu declaration.

Children Show Keen Interest In Birds

Old friend Robin Redbreast far outnumbered the other birds in the stories being submitted to the Gazette's Bird club editor in the contest which is being run by this paper to interest the children in nature's warblers.

But the robin does not have the whole story. A meadow lark gets in its melodious notes, the bluebirds give their chirp, and even old black crow has his caw.

The Gazette is offering bird books for the best 15 stories of about 100 words in length, submitted by children under 12 years of age. The contest closes March 31. The bird must be one that has been seen this year. The story should be written in ink and on one side of the paper only. A statement of an older person verifying the facts should accompany each story.

Besides awarding 15 prizes in the contest, the Gazette will enroll each child submitting a story in the Bird club, the activities of which will be the woods, bird studies, and illustrated talks on birds, are included in the program for the Bird club.

Anyone interested is eligible to enroll in the club, regardless of age or their entering the contest. Coupons for membership as printed in the paper, may be filled out and sent in for enrollment.

Old Age--

"Old Age" may seem a long way off, but no sensible man will wait until it is upon him before he begins to save and prepare for his last years.

You want to enjoy life now. Can you think of a single pleasure that will compare with thinking of yourself as a success?

Honor comes to the man who is able to gain in wealth. He has more influence — more power — than the man who spends all his income.

Think it over—act.

DROWNING A PLEASANT SENSATION WITH MARIE DIRECTING THE RESCUE

Marie Prevost as a life saver on the beach.

Many men who frequent the beaches will agree that Marie Prevost, movie comedy queen, missed her calling. She should have devoted her life to the noble work of saving other lives at the bathing beaches. Should she change her vocation at this late day there can be little doubt that she would be kept busy.

News Notes from Movieland

RUMOR FROM THE WEST

A report from the west coast that Mae Marsh plans a visit to New York soon suggests a number of interesting conjectures as to the small star's activities for the next year or so in the motion picture world.

It is known that Miss Marsh's contract with Goldwyn expired about the first of February, and persistent rumors as to her next contract offer give no very definite notion as to her plans, especially as she denies most emphatically that she is to tie up with Famous Players-Lasker.

Miss Marsh made the first picture released by the Goldwyn corporation. It was "Polly of the Circus," in which the Tallulah sisters achieved a stage success a few seasons previously. Later she starred in "Sunshine Alley," "The Cinderella Man," and "Fields of Honor," and others for the same company.

REVIVAL OF GRIFITH PICTURES

Revels of former Griffith pictures are contemplated and it is not unlikely that several new and heretofore unseen Griffith pictures will be shown for the first time along with these old releases. One of the most interesting features of such a plan would be the showing of the number of present day screen stars who received their early

RUMOR FROM THE EAST

We haven't had a rumor for at least 48 hours and so it is time we heard about this one. It is said and thought, and reported, perhaps, maybe Bessie McCoy Davis will be seen in the movies. Now we are waiting patiently for Bessie to up and deny or affirm the rumor. She will undoubtedly do both and sign and break a contract besides before she decides just what to do about acting for the camera.

HURRAH!
We are happy once again. We have seen Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew in their first Paramount comedy, "Romance and Kings." It certainly was a treat to see them on the screen again after their long absence. The picture is funny and Sydney Drew seems funnier than ever. We like this little comedy five times as well as the feature which was shown at the theater in fact we never would have known that the Drews were coming next.

Mrs. Charles Harnack and son moved to Janesville Sunday with their new car to see Mr. Henry Swanson, the former's son-in-law, who has returned from overseas and is at Camp Grant being treated for a wound received at the front.

Afton, March 12.—Edward Hammel went to Whitewater Monday to attend the funeral of his brother, Charles Hammel, whose death occurred at his home in Watertown on Saturday after a week's illness of pneumonia.

David Throne of Beloit, was a caller in Afton last Thursday evening in the interest of the Anti-Horse Thief association of which he is the secretary.

A meeting of the association was held on Tuesday evening with thirty-five members present. Eric Griffen who is now employed at the canning factory in Janesville spent Sunday with his folks here.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Whelan entertained Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Whaley and Harry Whaley of Beloit at dinner on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fuller came up from Beloit and spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fuller. Mrs. Chas. Shultz was called to Beloit Sunday evening because of the serious illness of her little niece, who is a little better at the present time.

Miss Virginia Johnson of Rock was a recent visitor in Madison with her brother who is attending the university.

Mrs. Nellie McCrea has returned from Arlington, Texas, where she spent the winter with her son Harry and family.

Mrs. Broad has gone to Dixon, Ill., where she will spend a few weeks with her daughter.

Miss Stella Kilmer of Janesville spent Wednesday in Afton the guest of Mrs. McCrea.

WOLVES OF THE SEA
By RANDALL FAIRISH

Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co.

"No, nor a particularly safe one. Travers' place is beyond the head. We'll put up with him tonight. D—n me, Sanchez, I believe I'll hall the fellow and find out what he is doing in there."

Sanchez nodded, carelessly striking flint and steel in an effort to relight a cheroot.

We came aboard slowly. The distance to be covered was not great, and in less than ten minutes we were drawing in toward the high stern of the anchored vessel.

No evidence of life appeared on board, although everything looked shipshape aloft and aloft, and a rather extensive wash flapped in the wind forward, bespeaking a generous crew. A moment later my eyes made out the name painted across the stern—Nanur of Rotterdam.

Fairfax leaned far out across the rail as we swept in closer, but the Spaniard exhibited no particular interest in the proceedings. A hundred feet distant I held the dancing sloop to mere steerage-way, while Fairfax halted.

A red-faced man with a black beard thrust his head up above the after rail and answered, using English, yet with a faint accent which was not Dutch.

"We ran down to see if you were in any trouble. This is a strange place to anchor. What are you—Dutch?"

The fellow waved his hands in a gesture indicating disgust.

"Dat's ect. Ve're ov Rotterdam—you see ze name ov ze sheep. But ve not sail from thar dis time—no. Ve cum here from ze Barbadoes," he explained brokenly, "viz came sugar an' hides. Ve vat here for our agent."

"But why anchor in a place like this? Why not go on up to the wharves?"

"Ve not? For siz—I no trust my crew ashore. Zay Vest Ind niggers, an' yud run away ven ze chance cum."

Become Slender
A Simple, Guaranteed Method

If you would like to lose weight, from one to five pounds of burdensome fat while eating and drinking all you need, also enjoying life far better than at present, just follow these simple directions:

Take seven deep breaths of fresh air each morning and evening; after each meal take a little oil of kerosene; eat all you need, but chew thoroughly, and swallow other stimulants of the digestive system.

Men and women who were waddling around with heavy, sluggish bodies have, in many cases, reported a gradual, agreeable reduction of thirty to eighty pounds of weight, and a consequent increase in health and vigor. This very reason is the time to become slender, attractive, vivacious and healthier, very easily, by the use of the "Kerolene" diet.

Get oil of kerosene at the drug store, it comes in capsules convenient to use and is now sold at before-war low price. Weigh and measure yourself week to week. You can scarcely realize the joy that waits you in your trimmer figure with good health and longer life. Show others this advertisement.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

SAYS THIS CURED HIS LUNG TROUBLE

Mr. Morgan passes insurance examinations now, and feels perfectly well.

"In 1908 my lungs became so badly affected I had to give up my work. I coughed all the time and finally had hemorrhages twice a day. My lungs and shoulders ached so I could hardly live. Two physicians told me I had consumption, said they could do no good and advised me to change climate."

"Finally a friend gave me a bottle of Milks Emulsion. It did me so much good that I continued taking it, and in 4 months it cured me sound as a dollar."

"My lungs are now as strong as ever. I weigh 147 pounds, which is more than I ever weighed before. I work all the time, can expand my chest six inches, and am able to pass lodge and insurance examinations without any trouble."—Otto Morgan, 429 Pearl St., Terre Haute, Ind.

It is not claimed that all advanced cases of this kind are curable, but that any such case is curable. But Milks Emulsion costs nothing to try in any case, and it has restored hundreds of hopeless victims to health.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural body action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to run-down, nervous, and debilitated persons, and amazing results in many cases of asthma, chronic bronchitis and tuberculosis of the lungs. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. A truly wonderful medicine for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. Milks Emulsion, J. P. BAKER, Inc., Ind. Sold and guaranteed by J. P. Baker.

CHAPTER VII.

The Lieutenant Unmasked.

Where the craft could be bound; for what secret purpose it was about; who were aboard, were but so many unsolvable questions arising in his mind. Where could it have come from, unless from that strange Dutch bark? If it really came from the Nanur of Rotterdam had it been sent in answer to some signal by Sanchez? I could think of nothing else. I determined to assure myself as to the identity of these strangers. If they had actually landed it would require only a few moments to ascertain the truth. The distance proved somewhat greater than anticipated, because of the deep curve in the shore and I had nearly reached the conclusion that the boat must have rounded the point and gone on when suddenly I was brought to a halt by a voice speaking in Spanish—one of those harsh croaking voices never to be reduced to a whisper.

"Not the spot Manuel? Of course it is; do you not suppose, know? This is the place and now there is nothing to do but wait. The senior—he will be here presently."

"Ay, unless you misread the signal," a somewhat more discreet but piping voice replied doubtfully. "I saw nothing of all you tell about, Estada."

The two men went on to discuss plans evidently communicated to Estada by Sanchez from England. I was about to creep nearer, when a newcomer moved past me scarcely a yard distant, along the narrow strip of sand. Directly opposite my covert he paused.

"Estada." He spoke the name cautiously.

"Ay, captain," and another figure emerged noiselessly from the gloom. "We await you."

"Good. I rather questioned if you caught my signal. I was watched and obliged to exercise care. How many have you here?"

"Four, senior, with Manuel Estevan."

"Quite sufficient. How is it here? Are there suspicious?"

"None, senior. We have cruised outside most of the time. There is no warships in these waters. You said you were being watched on the sloop. Are you known?"

"A dog of a servant who came over with us—one of Monmouth's brood. The fellow watches me like a hawk. We had some words aboard and there is hate between us."

"May I ask your plans, senior?"

"Yes, I am here to explain. This planter, Fairfax, has returned from England with a large sum. It is in gold and notes. It represents the proceeds of the tobacco crop of himself and a number of his neighbors. Without doubt it will be upward of fifty thousand pounds. This still remains in his possession, but a part will be dispersed tomorrow; so if we hope to gain the whole we must do so now. Everything is ready, and there is not the slightest suspicion of danger—not even a guard set over the treasure."

"Then it is at the house?"

"In an iron-bound chest, in the room assigned to Fairfax for the night. Only two servants sleep in the main house, the cook and a maid, both women. Fairfax is vigorous and will put up a fight if he has any chance. He must be taken care of before he does have any. Travers is an old man, to be knocked out with a blow. All we have to fear are those fellows on the sloop, and they will have to be attended to quietly without any alarm reaching the house. I am going to leave that job to you—it's not your first."

"The old sea orders, captain?"

"Ay, that will be quicker and surer." The voice hardened to sudden ferocity. "But mark you, with one exception—the Englishman is not to be killed, if he can be taken alive. I would deal with him."

The Mysterious Sail.

Where I leaned alone against the rail my eyes followed the Spaniard in doubt, and questioning, nor could I entirely banish from mind Haley's description of that buccanier bearing a similar name. Yet, in spite of my unconscious desire to connect these two together, I found it simply impossible to associate this rather soft-spoken, effeminate dandy with that bloody villain.

It was already quite dusk when we finally drew in beside Travers' wharf and made fast. Our approach had been noted and Travers, himself—a white-haired, white-bearded man, yet still hearty and vigorous, attired in white duck—was on the end of the dock to greet us, together with numerous servants of every shade of color, who immediately busied themselves toting luggage up the steep path leading toward the house, standing conspicuous amid a grove of trees on the summit of the bank. The others followed, four fellows jugging with difficulty an iron-bound chest, the two older men engaged in earnest conversation, thus leaving Sanchez apparently well satisfied with the opportunity alone to assist the girl.

Except to render the sloop completely secure for the night, there remained little work for us to perform on board. The four of us passed the early evening undisturbed smoking and talking together. So the time passed quickly, and it must have been nearly midnight before we brought out blankets from the forecabin and lay down in any spot we chose on deck.

It was a fair, calm night, but moonless, with but little wind stirring, and a slight haze in the air, obscuring the

Yet, in spite of my unconscious desire to connect these two together, I found it simply impossible to associate this rather soft-spoken, effeminate dandy with that bloody villain.

It was already quite dusk when we finally drew in beside Travers' wharf and made fast. Our approach had been noted and Travers, himself—a white-haired, white-bearded man, yet still hearty and vigorous, attired in white duck—was on the end of the dock to greet us, together with numerous servants of every shade of color, who immediately busied themselves toting luggage up the steep path leading toward the house, standing conspicuous amid a grove of trees on the summit of the bank. The others followed, four fellows jugging with difficulty an iron-bound chest, the two older men engaged in earnest conversation, thus leaving Sanchez apparently well satisfied with the opportunity alone to assist the girl.

Except to render the sloop completely secure for the night, there remained little work for us to perform on board. The four of us passed the early evening undisturbed smoking and talking together. So the time passed quickly, and it must have been nearly midnight before we brought out blankets from the forecabin and lay down in any spot we chose on deck.

Mabel's Peace Garden

By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Not very cordial, eh?" propounded a casual companion of John Trego, as they passed on the street a man who made a curt, short nod, and that grudgingly.

"He hasn't been neighborly for some time," explained Trego. "It's all come of my war garden."

"A 'pro,' is he?"

"Oh, indeed, not at all," John hastened to say. "Don't get that idea, for Winston Throop is a real patriot. You see, though, when the war garden boom came on I started in on the only spare space in the 50 by 200 feet side lawn. We utilized every foot of it. Onions, beets, corn, parsnips, cabbages and all that. Well, just as we had laid out the interesting plot, Throop ran up that wire fence on the dividing line."

"Why, what for?"

"To distinguish his own really artistic and beautiful flower garden from our homely layout. I don't know as I blame him. The pretty street frontage was really defaced by my common sprouting crops. All at once he and his family cut us cold. He even sent his son Harry away. I believe for fear his budding interest in my daughter Mabel would lead to something."

"Sort of a grouch, isn't he?"

"Not that, always, but thinks he was imposed upon," replied Trego indignantly. "You see, we couldn't use a quarter of the stuff we raised. My neighbors would have been affronted if I had offered it free to them. I left word in a poor neighborhood that they could come and help themselves, and they overrun us. They accidentally broke down a part of the dividing fence, threw some vegetable tops, and roots over on my neighbor's lot, and the next morning the look he gave me nearly froze me. It's all going to be mended now, I hope. The war is over, hence no more war gardens. So my daughter has solved the problem."

"Ah, how is that?"

"Instead of war garden, we will clear up the lot and prepare it for a peace garden for next spring."

"We have ordered vines, bushes, material for a pergola. In fact a sort of duplicate, or rather continuation of the Throop garden. We will carry out the general decorative and color scheme. I hope that will make up next year for the worry and annoyance we have caused our touchy neighbor this year."

Mabel had entered heart and soul into the plan for the peace garden. She superintended the ordering of trellis and bush supporters. Roses represented the particular floral fad of Mr. Throop, and over 200 bushes of every variety comprised Mabel's selection. Winston Throop opened his eyes wide as the work got under way. He always was courteous to the women folks of the Trego family, but now quite urbane as he lifted his hat to the fair gardener in evidence.

Mr. Throop came home one afternoon to find his wife and daughter absent at a social function. As he entered the house he gave an intelligent stare at a suitcase quite familiar to him.

"Mary," he spoke to the maid, "what does that mean?" and he pointed to the suitcase in question.

"It's young Harry, sir," was the response. "He came home at noon."

"Indeed! I did not expect him until the latter part of the week. Where is he?"

"I think he has gone out for a stroll, sir. He may be about the grounds somewhere. Shall I see, Mr. Throop?"

"No, I will find him if he's about anywhere," said Mr. Throop. "I fancy he's out in the garage looking over the new automobile."

Mr. Throop changed his coat. It a cigar and strolled to the rear of the lot. Harry was not in evidence about the garage, nor was he in the garden. Passing along the spite fence, however, Mr. Throop halted summarily. The sound of merry youthful voices directed his attention to the next lot.

"You are to hold this rose trellis till I set it in place," sounded out Mabel's voice. "Not my hand!"

"Which I could hold forever!" declared Harry Throop daringly.

For a moment Mr. Throop's face flushed, and his mind recalled the recent animosity garden. Then a sweep of memory carried him back to just such a circumstance when he was a lad and his wife a child of a girl.

"It's to be a real peace garden," he heard Mabel say. "Dad says that it will give the two places the finest frontage on the street."

"Haumph," growled Mr. Throop, "the two places! Oh, well, he is the one who has raised the white flag. It's the last of the war garden, so I'll not be a grouch entirely."

Winston Throop went into the house without revealing himself to the busy, bustling happy couple in the next yard. Finally Harry put in an appearance, flushed with exercise and a rare sort of contentment revealed on his clear, open face.

"I want some help for a bit, Harry," spoke his father, as casually as he could assume.

"All right, father, what is it?"

"I want you to assist me in removing that wire fence," explained Mr. Throop, and Harry, who had an inkling of the war garden episode, knew that he should meet Mabel very often.

Every Suit Must Have Its Vest

By ELOISE.

Dame Fashion has said "Vests," and forthwith every woman is rushing to the shops to indulge in some of the gorgeous brocaded ones which have been desired. They usually feature a vest means money and in some of the shops that means no vest for less than $12.50 per copy. Oftentimes, however, one can pick up little novelty vests made of linen, crash, pique or some light silk for as little as $1.95.

It is the gorgeous vest of brocaded satin or gold or silver which will attract most buyers. These vests will give an air of distinction to the plainest and most ordinary suit. Most of the shops are showing wondrous displays of novelty ribbons from which marvelous vests may be made with very little trouble.

The clever needlewoman will only look at the vests and then proceed to the ribbon counter and buy enough satins and brocades of novelty silks to make several for herself and the several will cost no more than one ready made. The one pictured on the left is of barred kumala cloth while rose colored silk and lace fashion the one on the right. White silk is used to make the basque blouse in the center which gives the effect of a vest when worn with a cutaway coat.

MAGNUS SWENSON TELLS OF RELIEF WORK

Magnus Swenson, former chairman of the State Council of Defense, and state food administrator, who is now in Denmark, has written to his aunt, Mrs. Marie Iverson of this city. His letter follows:

"Here I am in Denmark in charge of the American relief administration for this part of Europe. I first went to Paris where I was about 10 days with Mr. Hoover, and then I went to London and then to Christiania where I spent a week. I only had two days notice from Washington and had to leave day after Christmas to catch my boat. I had to come alone as travel is too hard now for ladies and the government will not issue any passports. I am going to have Mrs. Swenson come over later in the spring. The food situation is very hard over here and everything is very high.

"In Norway it is worse than here and in Sweden also, but I hope we can get some food over soon. We are now shipping to Finland where people are starving. We borrowed 10,000 tons of flour from the Danish government today to send up there, and are promising to make it good in March. I have also borrowed from Norway. Everybody is helping and it is a real joy to find the people so willing to help."

The Wisconsin Packing Co. operates a modern, sanitary, government inspected packing plant at Wausau, in the heart of the live stock section of northern Wisconsin, and have recently taken over the business, assets and good will of the former Farmers' Co-operative Packing Co., also of Wausau.

The company is one of very few successfully operated packing plants in the state of Wisconsin, and has under its present experienced management been placed on a dividend paying basis. It has no encumbrances on its plant and equipment and maintains current assets averaging 3 times its current liabilities.

The present issue of preferred stock, a large portion of which has been absorbed by the common stockholders, has no voting power except as to amendments to the company's Articles of Organization, but participates with the common stock in extra dividends, in excess of 7% on the preferred and 6% on the common, to the extent of a rate of one-half of such extra rate of dividend declared and paid on the common.

The proceeds of the sale of this issue will be used exclusively as additional working capital in order to take advantage of purchase discounts and trade opportunities. From two to three times the present volume of business may be taken care of without additions to the present plant and equipment.

All legal matters have been attended to by MESSRS. GORMAN & PREHN, ATTYS., of WAUSAU, and the accountancy of the company has for the last four years been taken care of by MESSRS. BROWNER, DRURY & CO., PUB. ACCTS., OF MILWAUKEE.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Heinie Groh.
War and the usual number of baseball deals and retirements have made startling changes in the lineups of seasons. Take the Cincinnati Reds, for instance. Heinie Groh is the only member of Charley Hersch's team of 1914 who is still with the Reders.

SPORTS

LOCALS WILL PLAY
NEW LONDON QUINTET
FOR TITLE ON FRIDAY

Members of the Lakota Cardinals who are playing at Chicago as the Madison Olympics, have a chance to annex a basketball championship this season. By winning two games in the A. U. tournament at Chicago yesterday the local five earned its way into the finals and will battle the New London team at nine o'clock tomorrow evening for the middle west championship.

In their first game yesterday afternoon the Olympics won from the Old Times Club by the score of 23 to 25. It was an old friend, "Skinny" Tauchen who turned the trick. Tauchen garnered 8 baskets during the engagement while both of the opposing guards were hanging on Karst. In the second game of the day against the Great Lakes Aviation team the gobs decided that Tauchen was the dangerous man and they decided to follow him closely. While Karst got in the game and gathered seven baskets.

Camp Grant was eliminated from the tourney by the New London team last evening by the score of 20 to 20. Camp Grant, on the other hand, defeated St. Johns during the afternoon. No games will be played in the tourney this evening, but the final game will be held at nine o'clock tomorrow evening. The local team for the first time in the history of basketball, will be one of the contenders. A carload of fans are going to journey to Chicago for the game.

CARRIERS WALLOP
POSTOFFICE CLERKS

Rural carriers handed the Postoffice Clerks a sound trouncing at the West Side alleys last night, winning by a margin of 154 pins. The route five had easy picking in all three games. Bliringer of the losing five was high with 198. The results:

FARMERS TROUNCED
BY DELIVERY FIVE

The Janesville Delivery Co. quintet waltzed through for a 51-pin victory over the Farmers' bowling five at the West Side alleys last night. The rural men staged a come-back in the last game, but they did not gather enough pins to overcome the lead. Lawrence carried off high honors with a 205 score. The results:

Farmers	110	120	116
Sorenson	138	123	162
Fuller	134	101	164
Martin	110	161	147

According to figures presented by Pauline Goldmark, manager women's service station United States Railroad administration, the number of women employed by steam railroads has increased 40,000 in ten months.

CHAMPS WILL PLAY
CAMP GRANT QUINTET

Janesville basketball fan lovers of a real team will have an opportunity on Saturday evening of witnessing the Lakota Cardinals in action in this city against the Camp Grant team. For the first time in the history of basketball in this city the local team is a contender for the honors of the A. A. U. tournament and all dogs points to them returning to Janesville for their game on Saturday as the champions of the middle west.

Camp Grant will have the same team as appeared here early in the season and the locals will extend every effort to wipe out the defeat handed them by the soldiers in their first game this season.

Basketball fans in this city are wild over the showing made by the locals at Chicago and plans are already being made for a monster turnout on Saturday evening to welcome the boys back.

Ample preparations have been made to accommodate the crowd at the Armory and it is thought that the crowd will be greater than the one that witnessed the game against Beloit in this city last week.

With exactly the same line-up on Saturday as is playing in Chicago this week the Cardinals will take the floor for what will probably be their last home game this season.

JACK JOHNSON ADMITS
WILLARD FIGHT DOPED

Havana, Cuba, Wednesday, March 13.—Jack Johnson, in a signed statement to the Associated Press tonight declared that his fight with Jess Willard in this city, 4 years ago, was a pre-arranged affair and that he allowed Willard to win.

The former champion declares that unless Willard agrees to fight him within a reasonable time he will claim the world's title. He signed his statement "Jack Johnson, Champion."

Lawrence, Kans., March 13.—Jack Johnson simply needs the money and is trying to put over another match, was the comment of Jess Willard when shown the statement received from Havana today. "There is absolutely nothing to it," Willard continued. "I refuse to dignify the statement with a denial for as far as I am concerned it is simply a crude joke."

St. Louis Nationals
Will Train at Home

St. Louis, Mo., March 13.—The St. Louis Nationals, unlike the St. Louis club of the American league, will remain at home for the training season. Washington university's campus will be the scene of the training activities. Clarence Lloyd, secretary of the club, said that notices would be sent to all players notifying them to report March 22.

The Nationals have 34 members on their roster, and with the exception of three all are expected to report. Two of the team's stars—Frank Snyder and Johnnie Miller—who have been overseas, have not been heard from. Catcher Dillhoeffer, secured from the Philadelphia Nationals, is also in the service, but expects to be given his discharge in time to report for training.

Exhibition games have been scheduled with Kansas City and Indianapolis. Negotiations are under way for an exhibition game in Louisville.

19 Year Old Southpaw
Will Be Given Try-out

St. Louis, March 13.—Arthur Reinhardt, a left-handed pitcher of the University of Iowa, will be given a trial with the St. Louis Nationals. He is only 19 years old, is over six feet in height and weighs 175 pounds. He pitched four no-hit games last season.

James W. Gerard is a lawyer of note and former ambassador to Germany. Mrs. Van Vleck is well known in northern society.

Major Mathews Dies of Shell Shock in France

Major Charles D. Mathews of the 26th Infantry of the 32nd Division died in France Nov. 26, from shell shock, according to word received by his wife in the Soo last week. Mrs. Edna Wilt of this city is an aunt of Major Mathews.

Major Mathews was born in Janesville, July 3, 1876. At the age of four years his family moved to Iowa where they resided in the Soo. He received a commission as a lieutenant in the Michigan state militia in 1902 and was married in 1904. Major Mathews saw service in Texas after which he was sent to France, where he saw action in numerous battles, particularly Chateau Thierry, where he was wounded and shell shocked. He leaves besides his wife, two children and one sister. Major Mathews was a frequent visitor to this city and will be remembered by many Janesville residents.

ST. PATRICK'S TEAM WILL PLAY LUTHERANS

On Friday night at the Y. M. C. A. the initial contest in the church basketball league will be staged when the team representing St. Patrick's church meet the Lutherans.

More interest is being manifested in the game this season than ever before and an exceptional large crowd is expected to be on hand for the opening game.

Dr. Masaryk Signing the Declaration of Independence for Czechoslovakia

A Story of the New State Made Up of Parts of Austria-Hungary, Which Has Formed a Democratic Government Now Recognized By the Allies

Copyright, 1919, The International Syndicate.

IN THE confused state of Europe at the present time as the result of the war no one can predict with any degree of accuracy how certain countries will be divided and what form of government will be established. This is especially true of the kingdom of Austria-Hungary. Sometime before the armistice was signed, the Czechoslovaks had declared their independence of the House of Hapsburg and had set up a separate government with Prague as the capital. This does not come as a surprise to the Allies for it was known that this race was not friendly to the Central Powers and had opposed the war, refusing to assist and deserting from the army when forced to join. The national spirit of the Czechoslovaks is not dead, and although it has been misruled and humiliated under the ruthless hand of the Hapsburgs for many centuries its fire was only smoldering, waiting for the opportunity to assert itself with some measure of success.

Already Recognized by Nation

It is almost certain that the new country will find recognition and will be welcomed into the Congress of Nations. France first recognized their government. This was followed by Great Britain and Italy, and September 3rd, 1918, Secretary Lansing took similar action. President T. G. Masaryk, the President of the Czechoslovak National Council journeyed to the United States and in the seat in Independence Hall, where our own republic was born, signed the Declaration of Independence for Czechoslovakia. During his visit he was accredited as the Czechoslovak diplomatic representative in the United States with the title of Commissioner and with plenary diplomatic powers. By signing the declaration Prof. Masaryk has gained the sobriquet of the "Washington" of the new republic.

Dr. Masaryk was born in Moravia in 1850. His father was a coachman and apprenticed his son to a blacksmith. Later the son entered the University of Prague, in which he became a professor in 1882. In 1878 he visited the United States, where he married an American girl, Miss Garrigue, of Brooklyn. He began his political career in 1891 and rapidly became the leader of his people. He fled from Bohemia in 1914 in order to continue directing the activity of the Czechs.

While the lines of the country are not fully drawn the republic is expected to embrace Bohemia, Moravia, a part of Hungary and a part of Austrian Silesia. The interesting city of Prague has been chosen as the capital. The history of Bohemia is full of pathos from the fact that it sought connection with the Hapsburg house for mutual protection only to find itself another victim to the duplicity of that disreputable dynasty. The Hapsburg war devastated the land and the casualties and suffering of its people were heavy and costly. In 1526 its remaining people fearing the subjugation of all Europe by Turkey joined with Austria and Hungary in what was supposed to be a free federation, but it was always ruled by a Hapsburg. Finally in 1918 the Bohemians opened a revolution against Emperor Ferdinand II, which finally brought on the famous Thirty Years War, which when ended found Bohemia more desolate than ever. Even the Czech language was prohibited in favor of the German. Again and again the hopes of these people have been raised for autonomy at least, but even this was refused and for two centuries nothing was accomplished toward giving this nation a freedom of its own.

Soldiers Favor Allies

During the present war the old spirit of rebellion against an unjust government was once more aroused and when their soldiers were ordered to kill their German officers. Meanwhile steps were taken to interest other nations in Czechoslovakia freedom. Dr. Masaryk was sentenced to death in 1914, but he managed to escape to France, where he started the establishment of societies in favor of a new government, speaking and working for the cause of his country in many friendly cities. In the United States the home of the down trodden and oppressed of Europe, the Czech-Slovak population gave it warm support.

Well Educated People

As a class the immigrants from the Czech-Slovak state have made good citizens, for there is a low per cent. of illiteracy among them. Many are found in Nebraska. In Chicago and New York many Czechs are physicians, lawyers and business men. They seem to be a peaceable race, at home being tillers of the soil instead of warriors. The land is fertile and the Bohemian section of the new state has vast resources, many of which are undeveloped. It has a world wide reputation for hops—one of the most important ingredients of beer; and the Pilsener beer brewed there is said to have no superior.

It has vast ore deposits, such as gold, graphite, tin and uranium. The Skoda Works of Pilsen, which heretofore converted most of the Bohemian ore into field pieces for the German Army was operated exclusively by German labor. This plant will hereafter be used for the industrial purposes of the new state as will the factories of Prague.

Porcelain and pottery works are many and their products are excellent. The highways and railroads of the new state are in splendid condition to accommodate travel for the famous health resorts of Carlsbad and Marienbad are located in Bohemia. These were always frequented by wealthy Americans who demanded the best of everything and their patronage was eagerly sought.

Added By The U.S.

The single waterway of Bohemia with an outlet to the sea is the River Elbe. For its greater distance it runs through German territory hence it may not be a favorable means of communication. Just now everything belonging to the people has been seized by the Austrian and German Government for food—in fact, the entire crops were confiscated. At present many are poor and destitute from this fact. The United States have lent a helping hand by making advances to the new state through the Treasury Department for the purchase of live stock, cattle, sheep and hogs and food in the American markets to tide over the people until the new crops are harvested. The women are great lace and toy makers, doing both at their homes and taking them to market to sell.

The schools are fairly good and education up to a certain age is compulsory. Like Germany, Bohemia is a land of uniforms for even the smallest school boy is compelled to show his grade by his clothing. This has always been distasteful to the people and it is likely that these uniforms will disappear under the new regime.

Bohemia ranks high as an educational center for the higher branches for Prague has two famous universities, one German and the other Bohemian. The German one was founded in 1348 on the basis of an old school dating back to the earlier part of the century. The Czech movement of the nineteenth century found expression in the Bohemian University at Prague, first in the intense of lectures in the Czech language, which eventually resulted in the foundation of the Czech University of Prague and has far outdistanced its German rival.

Old Prague Interesting

Historic old Prague with its interesting palaces and churches will be the capital of the new republic. As a residence of the kings this city played a prominent part in the early history of Bohemia, for under the rule of Charles IV it became one of the principal cities of the German Empire. It is situated on both banks of Moldau, which is spanned by nine bridges surmounted by two medieval towers and several statues of the saints among them that of St. John of Nepomuk, who is said to have been thrown into the river here by order of King Wenceslas IV and regarded by Bohemians as a patron saint of bridges. The whole city still preserves its medieval appearance, but the hotels are fitted with comfortable rooms, lighted by electricity. Although the streets are old they are kept in a sanitary condition.

There is a splendid Rathaus (City Hall), under which is a rathskellar where excellent food is served. At night there is a band, for the Czechs are a musical nation, and whole families come each night to these concerts. Indeed there is no better place to study all classes, than to dine at this rathskellar. Prague ham, famous the world over, was served here before the war in various ways. It tastes very much like the Smithfield ham of Virginia and is, of course, delicious. A trip through the city reminds one of the stories of ancient knights and castles, for at one place one is shown the old tower and the actual window from which the Imperial Councilors were hurled in 1618—the initial act of the Thirty Years War.

The Hapsburg or Imperial Palace built by Charles IV, by the French Architect Matthias of Arras, is perhaps the handsomest building in town. Like all European palaces it has huge, handsomely decorated rooms with not the least comfort to be found anywhere about them and it is to be hoped that the President of this democratic government will not be condemned to live in them. The most interesting room in the Palace is known as the Hall of Homage, situated in 1482-1602, with a Gothic ceiling placed there in 1603. It was used by the Bohemian diet up to 1847.

Gothic Cathedral

The Cathedral of St. Vitus, of all the churches, is the most interesting both in riches and in architecture and dates back to 1344. It charms one by its grandeur, beauty and variety of detail and is declared by connoisseurs to be one of the finest monuments to Gothic art. From time to time parts of it have been destroyed and restored and today it stands out in great beauty as an almost perfect piece of architecture. It contains many relics of saints and chapels named in honor of great men, but the handsomest of these is the tomb of St. John of Nepomuk, made of 3,700 pounds of silver. History tells us that after the drowning of this saint his body was placed in this great tomb in the Cathedral. The Most Holy Sacrament is kept in the tabernacle of the altar which forms a part of the tomb. A huge life sized figure of the saint kneels on the coffin, and it is covered by a huge silver canopy held by four angels.

The other parts of the republic of Czechoslovakia are very like Bohemia in their make up so it is scarcely necessary to speak of each one separately. The position of the republic is excellent from an economic standpoint and with a democratic government founded on justice there is no reason to believe this new republic will not succeed.

SHARON

Sharon, March 12.—On Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. T. H. Roper, occurred the marriage of her youngest daughter, Jennie, to Victor Simons, Rev. W. C.
